

The Change Agent CALL FOR ARTICLES Hair (Issue 46)

1. Tell a story about hair from when you were a small child. It can be funny or sad. When you tell the story, show yourself. We want to see you or learn something about you and your family.

2. What is "good" hair? What is "bad" hair? Do you care about hair? Why?

Extra Virgin
Olive Oil

Coconut Oil

3. What hair products do you use? Do you make your own? Share your recipe and tell the story of how you got the recipe.
4. What is beautiful hair? What is beauty? Do you know someone who is beautiful? What makes that person beautiful?

For the Teacher:

Activities to prepare for responding to the Call for Articles:

1. Bring in photos of yourself and your family. Describe the photos. Generate vocabulary for elements in the photo as well as feelings related to the photo.
2. Cut out pictures from magazines. Generate nouns and adjectives related to the photos.
3. Write down the steps of your hair care routine. Or of the hair care routine you do with your child.
4. Generate vocabulary that describes hair, then use it to describe your classmates' hair.
5. Develop questions about hair.
6. Stand in two lines facing each other. People in line A ask a question about the person opposite them in line B. (Examples: What products do you use on your hair? I use shampoo on my hair. Is your hair like your mother's hair or your father's hair? My hair is like my mother's hair. Who cuts your hair? My sister cuts my hair. Etc.)
7. Take pictures of each other's hair. Make an exhibit of hair styles. Label them. Talk about how long it takes to style the hair in different ways.
